The items below are copied from "The Catalogue of K-Vowel-N Words of the World," which currently (February, 2006) is online at the Etymology to the Maximum website, http://www.lionsgrip.com/etym.html . The author created this catalogue over a three-year period, finishing in 1992. It is in spreadsheet format, and interested readers are encouraged to try to find one of the versions that opens on your computer. With it, you can sort the columns any way you like: by the words themselves, by language, by Meanings, etc.

A Meaning, as used in this study, is a generally-used human concept that is evidenced by KVN words found among numerous language groups throughout the world. Meanings are seen to group themselves around even more general concepts, as arranged in this presentation. These more-general concepts are designated as Clusters. These are not fixed groupings, but, like any scientific key, can be equally successful under many different groupings and arrangements.

Firemaking, presumably, was performed by the dominant member, perhaps by anyone in the dominant lineage, of the extended clan. Individuals within this lineage may have been universally felt to be at the very source of the clan's strength, the life force. At earliest stages, there were no separate offices for "king" and "priest" ~~ the leaders of the clan wore all the hats. Or rather, no new hats had yet been devised.

Gradually, as new offices were devised, they were still given the Kan titles of respect. Government in general was called Kan. All rulers, in any arena, whether priest or king or magi, were still Kan.
